Jefferson maintains burn ban

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jefferson County's burn ban remains in place as the county continues to experience drought conditions despite some recent rainfall and rain forecast for today.

"This isn't arbitrary to ruin everybody's weekend. There is some data and science behind it," said Troy Morgan, director of the county's Emergency Management Agency at Thursday's Commissioners meeting.

Morgan said the drought monitor is released each week by the USDA and the latest update on Thursday morning "it didn't change hardly at all," still indicating higher risk for wildfires in Jefferson County. "Even with the rain we received those two different days over the last 10 days, it wasn't enough to make any changes to the actual drought monitor."

Morgan said he has consulted with fire chiefs throughout the county, forecasters at the National Weather Service and the fire crew at Big Oaks Wildlife Refuge at the Jefferson Proving Ground, and based on those discussions and the data available, a decision was made to continue the burn ban.

"There's rain forecast for Saturday so we're going to sit on it for a couple of more days" and see if there's any improvement in the conditions, Morgan added.

He noted other counties in the area "have for whatever reason lifted some of their" burn bans, which he noted seems to make Jefferson County an outlier, but he added "we also are the county that had a three-day wild wood fire" in western Jefferson County, providing proof of the danger that currently exists with the drought conditions. "We're just trying to do what's best for everybody."

Police nab suspect about 2 hours after alleged holdup

Probe results in 2nd arrest on drug charges

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Local law enforcement arrested a South Bend, Indiana, man Wednesday for the alleged armed robbery of the Jefferson Community Federal Credit Union in Madison earlier that afternoon.

Tobie William Dennis, 43, of South Bend, was charged with Armed Robbery, a Level 3 felony, and lodged in the Jefferson County Jail without bond. He is also facing a parole hold in connection with charges related to another jurisdiction.

According to a news release issued by Madison Police Department, Dennis is charged with entering the credit union, located at 545 Ivy Tech Drive, at about 4 p.m. and allegedly displaying a note to the teller indicating that he was robbing the bank and threatening bodily harm if the teller did not comply. After receiving cash from the credit union, Dennis left the bank and fled west on Ivy Tech Drive in a Ford Fiesta car.

Law enforcement responded to the holdup at approximately 4:02 p.m. and were able to develop information on the suspect within 20 minutes of the robbery with the help of an "excellent description from witnesses" to focus their investigation on the car and the suspect.

Tobie William Dennis

Kyle Brenden Elles

The suspect's vehicle was found abandoned about 15 miles away on County Road 1525 West in Deputy, Indiana, at approximately 5:30 p.m. Additional information received during the investigation indicated the suspect might be associated with an individual living on Blake Road in Graham Township. Officers responded to that address and located Dennis in the garage where he was taken into custody without incident just 2:15 after the holdup.

A search warrant was obtained for the Blake Road residence as well as all vehicles on the property and out buildings. During a search of the garage, the currency identified as taken in the robbery was recovered and during the search of other buildings and vehicles at the property 6.06 pounds of marijuana, 400 boxes of THC Vapes, approximately 21 ounces of marijuana extract known as Dab and $24,976.00 of U.S. currency was seized as evidence.

starting as MCS superintendent in July) to acknowledge the staff and the work that we are doing for students. Financially, it's great but it's also a pat on the back and says the board and her value what you do for our kids at Madison Consolidated Schools."

Whitaker said negotiations on the agreement were "very congenial," adding "It was a short and pleasant experience. It hasn't always been that way. So, we're excited with Dr. Brown and her demeanor at the table along with the board. We saw and heard their commitment to the staff" and to other employees in the school corporation. "We appreciated her attitude at the bargining table" and "appreciated the commitment of the board to retain and to get good teachers, both young and experienced, with that process.

"I haven't seen, in my career, that jump onto our base pay over my 25 plus years, so we are ecstatic about that, and think that it will go a long way in helping us to retain teachers and make this be a destination," Whitaker, a social studies teacher at Madison Consolidated High School, said. "And I think that's Dr. Brown nd the board's goal that we want to be the school district that everybody comes to; not the one that people are leaving to go to someplace."

The agreement provides a base salary increase across the board of $5,000 increase for all returning teachers and all new hire teachers.

Additionally, the contract adds assistant boys and girls golf coaching positions at $1,445 each, and creates boys volleyball club and girls wrestling club positions at $5,056 — the same as the girls volleyball and boys wrestling coaching positions. Both the boys volleyball and girls wrestling are sports Brown said are being recommended by the Indiana High School Athletic Association.

The agreement also provides that if a teacher is at an accumulation cap and the teacher has unused sick days at the end of the school year that exceed the cap, then the unused days above the cap can be bought out at $100 a day to be deposited in the teacher's 403b retirement account. "For those of us that are of our maximum of our accumulated days they will begin to pay for the days that we have been losing and getting nothing financially for. They have made a commitment to give us some financial payback for those days, so we don't just lose them," Whitaker said.

Also, the agreement provides the board will contribute to teachers' 403b retirement plan at the rate of one-quarter of a% of the teacher's base salary, which Whitaker noted is something that's being re-instituted that had been taken away from the teachers a few years ago. "They are starting small with a quarter of a% but made the commitment to investment in retirement and down the road for us also," he said.

Madison Teacher Association days will also be increased from six days to 10 days and the contract provides that when a teacher forfeits a preparation period at the direction of an administrator to cover the class of another teacher (most often when a substitute is not available) that there will be compensation of $25 per period up to 60 minutes, $75 for half day and $150 for a full day. Whitaker said all school districts are having trouble finding enough teachers to cover classes "so they have also made a commitment that if one of us certified (teachers) covers a class, it's a token financial compensation for giving up our planning times, and taking more student responsibility to cover that."

The agreement also provides that when two employees are married with children and enrolled on a family plan then the board will pay toward the married couple's family plan health insurance premium in an amount equivalent to the board's contribution of a member plan plus a member/child plan.

The agreement also establishes requirements related to personal leave around holidays and school breaks while also allowing the superintendent to deviate from the rules for unusual or unique circumstances.

"Dr. Brown and the board came with what they thought they could give us, and it was a fair and a great offer, and we recognized that," said Whitaker, noting that the agreement came together quickly and in less time that he can ever remember.

Today is Saturday, Nov. 5, the 309th day of 2022. There are 56 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 5, 2009, a shooting rampage at the Fort Hood Army post in Texas left 13 people dead; Maj. Nidal Hasan, an Army psychiatrist, was later convicted of murder and sentenced to death. (No execution date has been set.)

On this date:

In 1605, the "Gunpowder Plot" failed as Guy Fawkes was seized before he could blow up the English Parliament.

In 1872, suffragist Susan B. Anthony defied the law by attempting to cast a vote for President Ulysses S. Grant. (Anthony was convicted by a judge and fined $100, but she never paid the penalty.)

In 1912, Democrat Woodrow Wilson was elected president, defeating Progressive Party candidate Theodore Roosevelt, incumbent Republican William Howard Taft and Socialist Eugene V. Debs.

In 1940, President Franklin D. Roosevelt won an unprecedented third term in office as he defeated Republican challenger Wendell L. Willkie.

In 1964, NASA launched Mariner 3, which was supposed to fly by Mars, but the spacecraft failed to reach its destination.

In 1968, Republican Richard M. Nixon won the presidency, defeating Democratic Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and American Independent candidate George C. Wallace.

In 1974, Democrat Ella T. Grasso was elected governor of Connecticut, becoming the first woman to win a gubernatorial office without succeeding her husband.

In 1992, Malice Green, a Black motorist, died after he was struck in the head 14 times with a flashlight by a Detroit police officer, Larry Nevers, outside a suspected crack house. (Nevers and his partner, Walter Budzyn, were found guilty of second-degree murder, but the convictions were overturned; they were later convicted of involuntary manslaughter.)

In 1994, former President Ronald Reagan disclosed he had Alzheimer's disease.

In 2006, Saddam Hussein was convicted and sentenced by the Iraqi High Tribunal to hang for crimes against humanity.

In 2007, Hollywood writers began a three-month strike, forcing late-night talk shows to immediately start airing reruns.

In 2011, former Penn State defensive coordinator Jerry Sandusky, accused of molesting eight boys, was arrested and released on $100,000 bail after being arraigned on 40 criminal counts. (Sandusky was later convicted and sentenced to 30 to 60 years in prison for the sexual abuse of 10 boys over a 15-year period.)

Ten years ago: On the eve of the presidential election, President Barack Obama and Republican challenger Mitt Romney held rallies seven miles apart in Columbus, Ohio. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled a South Carolina sheriff's office could be held liable for attorneys' fees for stopping abortion protesters who wanted to hold up signs showing aborted fetuses.

Five years ago: A gunman armed with an assault rifle opened fire in a small South Texas church, killing more than two dozen people; the shooter, Devin Patrick Kelley, was later found dead in a vehicle after he was shot and chased by two men who heard the gunfire. (An autopsy revealed that he died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound.) President Donald Trump arrived in Japan for the start of a 12-day, five-country Asian trip. Shalane Flanagan became the first American woman to win the New York City Marathon since 1977; Geoffrey Kamworor of Kenya was the men's winner.

One year ago: A crush of fans during a performance by rapper Travis Scott at a Houston music festival left ten people dead, as people were squeezed so tightly they couldn't breathe. The House gave final congressional approval to a bipartisan $1 trillion infrastructure plan with money for roads, bridges, ports, the power grid, broadband internet and more. TODAY IN HISTORY

TODAY'S HIGHLIGHT IN HISTORY:

On Nov. 7, 2013, shares of Twitter went on sale to the public for the first time; by the closing bell, the social network was valued at $31 billion. (The company would go private again in October 2022 after Elon Musk purchased the social media platform for $44 billion.)

ON THIS DATE:

In 1917, Russia's Bolshevik Revolution took place as forces led by Vladimir Ilyich Lenin overthrew the provisional government of Alexander Kerensky.

In 1944, President Franklin D. Roosevelt won an unprecedented fourth term in office, defeating Republican Thomas E. Dewey.

In 1973, Congress overrode President Richard Nixon's veto of the War Powers Act, which limits a chief executive's power to wage war without congressional approval.

In 1991, basketball star Magic Johnson announced that he had tested positive for HIV, and was retiring. (Johnson would go on to play again, in the NBA and the Olympics.)

In 2001, the Bush administration targeted Osama bin Laden's multi-million-dollar financial networks, closing businesses in four states, detaining U.S. suspects and urging allies to help choke off money supplies in 40 nations.

In 2011, a jury in Los Angeles convicted Michael Jackson's doctor, Conrad Murray, of involuntary manslaughter for supplying a powerful anesthetic implicated in the entertainer's 2009 death. (Murray was sentenced to four years in prison; he served two years and was released in October 2013.)

In 2018, a gunman killed 12 people at a country music bar in Thousand Oaks, California, before apparently taking his own life as officers closed in; the victims included a man who had survived the mass shooting at a country music concert in Las Vegas.

In 2020, Democrat Joe Biden clinched victory over President Donald Trump as a win in Pennsylvania pushed Biden over the threshold of 270 Electoral College votes; the victory followed more than three days of uncertainty as election officials sorted through a surge of mail-in ballots. Trump refused to concede, threatening further legal action on ballot counting. Chanting "This isn't over!" and "Stop the steal," Trump supporters protested at state capitols across the country, echoing Trump's baseless allegations that the Democrats won by fraud.

Ten years ago: One day after a bruising election, President Barack Obama and Republican House Speaker John Boehner (BAY'-nur) both pledged to seek a compromise to avert looming spending cuts and tax increases that threatened to plunge the economy back into recession. A 7.4-magnitude earthquake killed at least 52 people in western Guatemala.

Five years ago: Democrats Ralph Northam in Virginia and Phil Murphy in New Jersey were the winners in their states' gubernatorial elections. President Donald Trump arrived in South Korea, saying efforts to curb the North's nuclear weapons program would be "front and center" of his two-day visit. Former star baseball pitcher Roy Halladay died when the small private plane he was flying crashed into the Gulf of Mexico; the 40-year-old was an eight-time All-Star for the Blue Jays and Phillies. Twitter said it was ending its 140-character limit on tweets and allowing nearly everyone 280 characters to get their message across.

One year ago: Iraqi Prime Minister Mustafa al-Kadhimi survived an attack by armed drones on his residence in Baghdad; officials said seven of his security guards were wounded. Dean Stockwell, a former child actor who gained new success in middle age in the sci-fi series "Quantum Leap," died at 85. Eighty-three-year-old M.J. "Sunny" Eberhart of Alabama strode into the record books as the oldest hiker to complete the Appalachian Trail. John Artis, who was wrongly convicted with boxer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter in a triple murder case made famous in a song by Bob Dylan and a film, died at his Virginia home at age 75.

Today's Birthdays: Former U.S. Sen. Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota is 92. Actor Barry Newman is 84. Actor Dakin Matthews is 82. Singer Johnny Rivers is 80. Former supermodel Jean Shrimpton is 80. Singer-songwriter Joni Mitchell is 79. Former CIA Director David Petraeus is 70. Jazz singer Rene Marie is 67. Actor Christopher Knight (TV: "The Brady Bunch") is 65. • Morgan said no official notification has been received on the county's application for FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) infrastructure funding to help recover from Brushy Fork flood damage during Labor Day week.

Gov. Eric Holcomb signed an executive order in late September declaring a disaster emergency for Jefferson, Switzerland and Ohio counties due to the heavy rainfall Sept. 3 that resulted in flash flooding causing severe damage to infrastructure, including roads, homes, buildings and bridges, and one death in Jefferson County.

"FEMA was here and they validated our (claims) without any issues," said Morgan, but it's just a matter of FEMA making an announcement on whether infrastructure financial assistance will be granted.

County Highway Superintendent Bobby Phillips said he is waiting to hear back about the FEMA funding before making more infrastructure repairs needed in the Brushy Fork area. "I have about three different plans," depending on whether FEMA funding is available, he said.

Greetings To All,

I would like to take a few moments of your time and let you know why I think I am the BEST candidate for Sheriff of Jefferson county. I believe a good Sheriff should posses confidence with an open mind and a willingness to learn. I am more than confident that I can lead the Office of Sheriff into the future with professionalism and integrity. In doing this I will be open minded to the ideas and voices of the employees, as they are the ones that have been there doing the work.

The Sheriff should posses dedication and knowledge of the peoples wants and needs of which he serves. As your Sheriff, I would be dedicated to the position and would make myself visible and readily available to the public. The Sheriff should also posses experience combined with common sense.

Ladies and Gentlemen, I've been a LIFELONG resident of Jefferson County!!!! I was born here and raised my family here. I had the want but I was unable to be a police officer as I was not able to provide the life I wanted for my family on an officers salary at that time in my life. What I did do along with my full time job, was volunteer as a Reserve Officer, Jailer, and Dispatcher for 13 years. It was during that time that I gained experience and knowledge that a police officer receives working on the street. The Reserves duties entail a lot of special details such as working functions such as ball games, Jefferson County 4-H Fair, festivals and other county related events. Working those events put me in contact with a lot of citizens of Jefferson County where I learned and listened to their wants and needs and how things could be better or what could be done to provide the best for the county.

After raising my family and retiring, I came back to the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department as a Jail Officer and got to experience how the jail was ran in modern times. From there I became a Special Deputy with Court House Services, assisted with civil process service, and performed tasks assigned by the road deputies. Again, this was a position that put me in contact with the citizens and allowed me to experience how the services of the Sheriff's Office are carried out .

My commitment and dedication to serving those positions NEVER wavered. As your Sheriff, my commitment and dedication will never waiver. I will use all my experience, knowledge and common sense to lead and advance the Sheriff's Office into the future. Together, along with employees of the Sheriff's Office we will work as a team to provide the citizens of Jefferson County the safety and services that they deserve.

I am one of you. I have a lot of the same wants as you and as your sheriff I will not forget where I came from. So, I'm asking you to VOTE for me,TIM DAVIS for Jefferson County Sheriff on Tuesday November 8th.

A Fresh Look at Whole Life Insurance

Layin' it on the line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

Whole life has a simple objective, to ensure your "whole" life, in other words, it will pay the benefits anytime during your whole life, regardless of how long you live. All you need to do is pay the premium.

Life insurance is a contract between an insured person (the policyholder) and the insurer. The premium pays for guaranteed benefits in case of death, but there are other features that can provide additional protection as well

In exchange for fixed premiums, whole-life policies offer life insurance protection and tax deferral on growth by accumulating cash value with competitive interest rates.

In exchange for fixed premiums, an insurance company promises to pay a set benefit when the policyholder dies but also offers additional benefits as well. Whole life insurance policies can build up cash value, effectively a cash reserve that pays a modest rate of return, and the growth is tax-deferred. Guarantees are based on the claims-paying ability of the issuing company.

Most whole life insurance policies allow policyholders to borrow a portion of their policy's cash value. Access to the cash value can allow you to pay for things like college expenses, a home down payment, or any other needs you may have.

When the policyholder dies, his or her beneficiaries receive the benefit from the policy. Depending on how the policy is structured, benefits are usually not taxable.

Whether whole life insurance is the best choice for you may depend on a variety of factors, including your goals or circumstances.

Whole life insurance can be an excellent investment for those who want to be protected financially after death. The policies promise a fixed benefit but also offer additional benefits such as cash value - which can build up and provide returns tax-deferred in order of security against personnel losses caused by unforeseen events like accidents or illnesses, and guarantees based on claims-paying ability from issuing companies

The FDIC (Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation) does not insure life insurance. It is not insured by any federal government agency, bank, or savings association. Each state's Department of Insurance regulates life insurance.

Young Hilltoppers lead wire-to-wire to beat CAI

Kring victorious in coaching debut

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

As a player, Drew Kring was never nervous before a game but the former Shawe High School standout was a bundle of nerves before his first game as a head coach. Luckily for him, his Hilltoppers quickly put him at ease.

Shawe's players made their coach a winner in his coaching debut, leading wire-to-wire and pulling away in the second half to beat Christian Academy of Indiana 47-29 at home on Thursday.

The Hilltoppers led 13-2 after the first quarter and other than a brief hiccup in the second quarter when they allowed CAI to close to within four twice, were never challenged. That type of performance put Kring at ease and allowed him to settle into the rhythm of the game.

"I was a hell of a lot more nervous now than I ever was as a player," Kring said with a chuckle after the game. "As a player, I knew that I could take care of all this and I controlled most of it. Now I'm relying on 14-, 15-, 16-year old girls. It's a little bit different, and I had a little pregame jitters but with the way we came out and started that game, they went away pretty quickly."

Shawe didn't play like a team that was starting two freshmen and two sophomores. Freshman Audrey Barron hit the first shot she took — a 3-pointer from the top of the key — and the Hilltoppers committed only five turnovers while limiting Christian Academy to just 12 made field goals in the game.

While it wasn't perfect by any means, Kring loved the way his team attacked from the start.

"I couldn't be more proud of the effort, especially defensively. I mean, we flat got after it. And they've done enough defensive slides over the last two weeks that they probably should have," Kring, who was named to replace the retired Terry King earlier this year, said. "We're going to hit shots; those will fall. But with the effort, I couldn't be happier. Couldn't be happier."

Leading 4-2 early, Shawe closed the first quarter on a 9-0 run to take a 13-2 lead but went ice-cold throughout much of the second

Hanover soccer teams advance to conference title game with recent wins

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover scored a goal early and another late to beat Mount St. Joseph 2-0 in the semifinals of the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference women's soccer tournament Wednesday on campus.

The Panthers, the tourney's No. 1 seed, scored what proved to be the game-winner in the third minute when Callen Johnson gathered in a rebound when Cassidy Lett's attempt went off the post and put the ball into the net.

Hanover then got an insurance goal in the 58th minute when Nora Ludwig scored on a breakaway with an assist from Johnson.

Hanover held a 24-14 advantage in overall shots but just 12-9 on goal. The Panthers also had five corner kick chances to one by Mount St. Joseph.

Hanover keeper Maggie Hinegardner stopped nine shots while recording the clean sheet.

Hanover, now 12-2-3 on the season, hosts No. 2 seed Rose-Hulman in the HCAC championship on Saturday starting at 2 p.m. Rose-Hulman advanced after defeating Anderson on penalty kicks in the other semifinal on Wednesday.

Hanover and Rose-Hulman battled to a 1-1 tie last week in the regular-season finale.

HANOVER MEN BEAT TRANSY

Hanover men's soccer defeated Transylvania 2-1 in the HCAC Tournament semifinals Wednesday at home.

All of the scoring came in the first half. Joao Domenici connected on a penalty kick in the 20th minute to give Hanover a 1-0 lead. After Transy tied the match five minutes later when Max Nusbacher found Dylan Barnes on the right side of the box and Barnes directed the ball into the goal off his chest.

The Panthers then got what proved to be the game winner on a Joel Yann goal in the 40th minute off an assist from Danny Tapia.

Neither team scored in the second half and Hanover claimed the 2-1 victory.

Shots were hard to come by in the game with only a total of 16 attempted and just nine on goal. Hanover held a 10-6 overall advantage in shots but Transy led 5-4 on shots on frame. The Pioneers also had more corner kicks, 6-3.

Goalie Luciano Salemi stopped four shots for the Panthers (10-4-4).

Hanover, the No. 2 seed, now travels to top-seed Rose-Hulman for the HCAC Championship on Saturday. The Fightin' Engineers held off Manchester 1-0 in the other semifinal on Wednesday.

Hanover and Rose-Hulman finished in a 0-0 draw when they played last week at Hanover.

VOLLEYBALL FALLS IN TOURNEY

Hanover volleyball saw its season end with a 3-0 (25-13, 28-26, 25-14) loss to Rose-Hulman in the opening round of the HCAC Tournament Wednesday on the road.

Brooke Herrell had five kills and a block for the Panthers, Elliot Mays had five kills, Molly Schwarzkopf had four kills and three blocks, Meredith Deckard had two aces and seven digs, Casey Dunn had two aces, 21 digs and three assists, Aubrey Walton had an ace and nine assists, CC Shick had two blocks, and Maggie Schweitzer had eight assists and 11 digs.

Hanover ends the season with a 13-14 record.

WORLD SERIES

Verlander finally off the schneid, Astros lead Phillies 3-2

BY RONALD BLUM
AP BASEBALL WRITER

PHILADELPHIA — Justin Verlander beamed like a first-time big leaguer, and the Houston Astros feted the 244-game winner like a baby-faced rookie.

"They put me in the cart and rolled me in the shower and just dowsed me with all sorts of stuff," he said. "And it was one of the best feelings in my career."

After 16 years of trying, Verlander finally gritted out his elusive first World Series win.

The soon-to-be three-time Cy Young Award winner overcame an early jolt, rookie Jeremy Peña hit a go-ahead homer and drove in two runs and the Astros beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 Thursday night to head home with a 3-2 Series lead.

"I can say I got one," Verlander proudly proclaimed.

Buoyed by defensive gems from Trey Mancini in the eighth and Chas McCormick in the ninth, the Astros moved to the brink of their second championship — the other was a scandal-tainted title in 2017. They can close out the Phillies on Saturday night at Minute Maid Park.

"There's going to be a lot of energy in our park," said Houston's 73-year-old Dusty Baker, one win from his first title in 25 seasons as a major league manager.

Philadelphia, wearing vintage powder blue uniforms in the Series for first time since 1983, lost consecutive games for the first time this postseason.

Of previous Fall Classics tied 2-2, the Game 5 victor has won 31 of 47 times. Three years ago, the Astros lost Games 6 and 7 at home to Washington.

"I think it matters that we've already won there this series," the Phillies' Rhys Hoskins said. "Should give us a little more confidence."

Verlander is among just five Astros remaining from the team caught using video to steal signs in '17. He had been 0-6 with an unseemly 6.07 ERA in eight Series starts dating to his rookie season with Detroit in 2006, a blotch in a likely Hall of Fame career.

Pitching with an extra day of rest for his arm and stubble on his face, the 39-year-old right-hander gave up just the one run and four hits over five innings with four walks and six strikeouts. He lowered that Series ERA to 5.63, a celebratory cap on a season in which he returned from Tommy John surgery and re-emerged as the AL's best starter.

Houston went ahead just four pitches in against Noah Syndergaard on Peña's run-scoring single. Then Kyle Schwarber hit his fifth postseason homer leading off the bottom half, harkening to the five-run lead Verlander wasted in Houston's opening 6-5, 10-inning loss.

Bengals, Panthers look to stabilize after losses

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Even with star receiver Ja'Marr Chase on the shelf with an injury, quarterback Joe Burrow believes the Bengals can get going this week against the Carolina Panthers and maintain it through the second half of the season.

After all, the third-year quarterback reasons, that's generally what happened last year when Cincinnati got hot in the second half and went all the way to the Super Bowl.

"Down the stretch, that's what we were so good at last year — finding ways to win," Burrow said. "It might not be pretty, but we found ways. And we've got to get back to that, in those ugly, tough, divisional (matchups), the games on the road where things might not be going great for you.

"You've got to find ways to win those games, and this year we haven't."

The latest debacle was Monday night in Cleveland, when nothing was working for the Bengals (4-4), who got monster-mashed by the Browns 32-13 on Halloween.

Cincinnati had won four of its previous five and seemed to be building some steam.

But, nothing doing.

"That was one of those games that, man, we couldn't get things going our way, and we've got to put it behind us," coach Zac Taylor said. "It's not indicative of who we're going to be the rest of the season, and (we've got) a chance to grab some momentum at the end of this week."

The Panthers (2-6) had stunned Tom Brady and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 21-3 on Oct. 23 only to turn around and lose an overtime heartbreaker to Atlanta 37-34.

"As I just told those guys, 'It's a lot of football left,' said Steve Wilks, who was named interim coach when Matt Rhule was fired last month. "The opportunity for us to win this division is still there. We're not going to look ahead. We're going to still stay the course."

WALKER HOLDING ON

Former XFL quarterback P.J. Walker makes his fourth straight start for the Panthers as he continues to hold off competition from Baker Mayfield and, by extension, Sam Darnold, who is healthy and ready to return from injured reserve.

Walker beat the Bucs 21-3 in Week 7 and should have been the star last week after completing a 62-yard TD pass to D.J. Moore that tied it at 34 with 12 seconds remaining. However, Moore took off his helmet after the catch to celebrate and was flagged for unsportsmanlike conduct, costing the Panthers 15 yards. That turned a 33-yard extra point into a 48-yarder, which Eddy Pineiro missed. The Panthers went on to lose the game in OT.

Wilks said Walker is the starter for now, but made no promises moving forward — which is OK with Walker.

"For me, that's the best thing you could ask for," Walker said when asked if he had been given any assurance the starting job was his. "I've got a chip on my shoulder every time I step on the football field, and that's how I'm going to carry it moving forward."

BEAT-UP CORNERBACKS

Their best, Chidobe Awuzie, suffered a season-ending knee injury against the Browns. Other veteran cornerbacks also are battling injuries, including Eli Apple and Tre Flowers, both with hamstring issues. Cincinnati is going to have to rely heavily on rookies Dax Hill and Cam Taylor-Britt to pick up the slack.

"That's where the depth in the room really has to step up," Taylor said. "And it's a group we're confident in. They need the experience, so they're going to get some experience."

COMMITTED TO THE RUN

Wilks has made a commitment to the running game and D'Onta Foreman is the beneficiary of that. The journeyman running back has run for 118 yards in each of the last two games and had three touchdowns on the ground last week against the Falcons.

Foreman fits the identity Wilks has strived to create since the departure of Christian McCaffrey — a bruising, physical back who can wear down a defense.

Colts, Patriots meet again with season at crossroads

BY KYLE HIGHTOWER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

FOXBOROUGH, Mass. — The Indianapolis Colts and New England Patriots meet for the second straight year with their seasons at a crossroads.

Last year, both were coming off bye-week breaks entering Week 15 when the Colts — 7-6 at the time — hosted a Patriots squad that was 9-4 and riding a seven-game winning streak. The Colts rallied behind a 170-yard rushing performance from Jonathan Taylor to pull out a 27-17 win.

But Indy couldn't ride the ripples of that victory and dropped two of its final three games, missing the playoffs. The Patriots' loss started a stretch during which they lost three of four to end the regular season. They made the playoffs, but were blown out in the wild-card round by Buffalo.

The circumstances are a bit different entering Sunday's matchup — yet the outcome could again have a lasting impact on both teams' prospects.

"Every week's a challenge in the NFL," said Patriots coach Bill Belichick, whose team is 4-4 and has won three out of four, but finds itself in last place in the AFC East.

The Colts (3-4-1) are still adjusting after coach Frank Reich benched quarterback Matt Ryan last week and started second-year Sam Ehlinger. Reich shook things up more on Tuesday, firing offensive coordinator Marcus Brady in hopes of jumpstarting a unit that has scored 17 or fewer points in five of its past seven games.

"Sometimes it's just right for a change and there's something that makes sense for the team," Reich said.

Meanwhile, Patriots quarterback Mac Jones is coming off earning his first victory since returning to the lineup following a three-week absence due to an ankle injury.

But New England's offense has managed just one touchdown in the two games since he returned and continues to struggle in the red zone.

The Patriots remain ranked 29th in the league in red-zone efficiency, scoring a TD on just 11 of 24 opportunities. New England is also tied with Indy and New Orleans with an NFL-high 16 turnovers through Week 8.

"The ball is No. 1. We have to do a better job with that, and I do, too," Jones said. "But they're part of the game. You just have to move on from them. We're trying to identify how we can be better, and that's the important part."

PROTECTION PROBLEMS

Another big factor in the Patriots' issues has been the recent inconsistency of their offensive line.

Jones was sacked six times by the New York Jets last week and hit a total of eight times. There is no guarantee things will be better against Indianapolis.

The status of starting center David Andrews is in doubt for a second straight game as he works his way back from a concussion. Rookie left guard Cole Strange was benched during last week's game following a pair of holding penalties and allowing a sack. And right tackle remains a revolving door between Isaiah Wynn and Marcus Cannon.

Left tackle Trent Brown is tied for second in the league with seven penalties, but has also played every snap this season after missing eight games in 2021.

LEARNING CURVE?

Belichick's game plans have caused all sorts of problems for former Colts quarterbacks such as Peyton Manning and Andrew Luck and many other stars. So how will Sam Ehlinger prepare for his matching wits with one of the game's greatest defensive minds?

Even after the firing of Brady, the trade of running back Nyheim Hines and addition of running backs Zack Moss and Jordan Wilkins, Ehlinger isn't changing a thing.

"It just comes down to having a routine that stays the same regardless of the circumstance," he said. "So for me, when I was the No. 3, it was the same routine as it is now. So, regardless of things changing, I've kept everything the same and it's provided stability for me."

HOLDING THE LINE

Ehlinger's running ability gave the Colts a different dimension and it may have helped them find a solution for the offensive line struggles. Through eight games, the Colts have given up 26 sacks, 66 quarterback hits and used five starting lineups.

But Indy also ran the ball more effectively last week. If Taylor, the defending NFL rushing champion, overcomes an ankle injury to play this week, perhaps the Colts will finally find the balance they've been seeking.

"I do feel like our protection has been pretty good the last few weeks," Reich said. "The run game last week was better, not where we want it to be. We've had the changing dynamics there. ... Are we heading in the right direction? I do feel like we are."

Online match might be age-related mismatch

AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I am 35. About three months ago, I matched with someone on a dating app. This person listed their age as 24.

We really hit it off. We would chat for hours every day.

I brought up f our age difference. My match said it didn't bother them. Although they were far away, we decided to meet. I decided to make a trip of it and stayed for a few days. We spent the whole time together and had a wonderful time.

Our connection grew deeper, and we continued to chat every day for hours. We have the same sense of humor, philosophical and spiritual beliefs, political views, and ideas about what we want in a relationship and in life. During our chats I never really noticed the age gap.

Well, my match recently revealed to me that they lied about their age. This person is not 24, but 20 years old.

My match has accepted responsibility, apologized, and accepted any possible consequences. I was able to forgive, and I can easily move on.

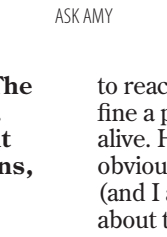
My main qualm now is the very real social stigma associated with the 15-year age gap, especially with this person being so young.

My heart tells me to just continue. I really care about this person, and my feelings are reciprocated. But I worry about what my family and friends will think of me. Your thoughts?— Concerned Lover

Dear Concerned: I wouldn't want to date a 20-year-old (even when I was 20), mainly because I once was one and I've helped to raise several. Inflating your age by a full quarter of your lifespan is exactly the sort of choice 20-year-olds make, but I give this person credit for coming clean about this.

It's natural for anyone to want their friends and family to approve of a serious relationship, but at the end of the day only you two need to resolve the question of whether this feels right to you. And if it does feel right — really right — then you'll still seek approval, but it won't be a game-changer if you don't receive it.

Adult child worries about caregiving elders



AMY DICKINSON
ASK AMY

Dear Amy: I'm a grown millennial. My parents are aging. Unfortunately, I don't have much in common with them.

I live nearby and they want me to visit them every week.

They're disorganized and I like to be organized.

They don't plan for the future, and live day by day.

They are always in debt, while I am frugal. The list goes on and on.

We have different hobbies and religions, too.

It's tough. They are over 70 and I'm dreading the caregiving years.

I can't be the only person in this situation.

How should grown children deal with parents with whom they have little in common?

— Anonymous

Dear Anonymous: Given the level at which your parents function, they may have done a less-than stellar job meeting the standards most parents work so hard to reach, but — not to put too fine a point on it — you are alive. High functioning. They obviously care about you (and I assume that you care about them).

Here's how adults in functioning families should deal with their aging parents: with compassion and patience.

Here's how adults do deal with aging parents: with some frustration. Prepare yourself for some anxious nights, trips to the ER, holding hands at the crosswalks, etc.

It is vital that you take good care of yourself. This includes establishing boundaries, understanding that you will not be able to control or change them, and practicing the all-important level of compassionate detachment where you are able to enjoy some of your time with them, despite your differences in temperament and lifestyle.

ASTROLOGY

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Work to get the best value for every expenditure. Shopping expeditions might only be a success if you locate a bargain basement treasure. You can get much accomplished by being organized and resourceful.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Leave with the person you came with. Someone close might feel threatened when other people are attracted by your sparkle, although you are merely being friendly. You may feel tied down by duty and obligation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — You don't need to prove anything to anyone, so don't let any kind of chip grow on your shoulder. You may feel totally hot to trot when companions want to take their time. Do your best to clarify your thinking.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Some things are as good as advertised. Nevertheless, you would be smart to check out the facts before you sign on the dotted line or spend your money. Now is the time to put money away for a rainy day.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Even if you happen to be in Las Vegas, what happens this weekend isn't likely to stay quiet. Remain discreet and avoid becoming involved in romantic tangles or dramas that could jeopardize your happiness or peace of mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — The universe operates on exchanges of energy, so any desire to take advantage of a situation usually goes unsupported. Don't let someone's impulsive decisions disrupt your game plan. Discuss your feelings before a misunderstanding erupts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — You may feel a need to express your feelings or ask for feedback if a loved one seems to give you the cold shoulder. Or you may calmly wait for more intel. Share a love of adventure with friends by taking a road trip.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — There are many paths to choose from, but this is not the best day to make a choice. Before you can start something new you must be sure to fulfil your existing commitments. Act only with honorable intentions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You might be looking on the bright side and overlook yellow or red flags. A loved one or family member might be hiding their anger about something. Let them - avoid misunderstandings and confrontations today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Perseverance and judgment can lead you safely past the sketchy spots. Avoid taking on any new commitments or obligations. The people you depend upon the most for advice could reverse their positions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — It is wise to be wary now; read all labels and fine print. Be cautious about spending or making a contribution as you might not have a clear picture of where your money is really going or who may benefit.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Your sympathy may be misplaced. Adhere to the rules of etiquette when you meet someone new and maintain a respectful distance. Do not make crucial decisions now because the results could be disappointing.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — You may be tempted to gamble or otherwise risk your resources. Circumstances such as unexpected bills could then combine to disrupt your budget. Remain conservative about investments and watchful with spending.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You may feel like a focus of too much scrutiny. Some temporary stresses could make it difficult to make good choices. During the month ahead, you might become less anxious and more courageous about something.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Self-discipline is always helpful. Cultivate the grit and determination to ignore distractions and interruptions and stay on point. Don't compromise your authenticity or boundaries to chase outside validation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Do it right the first time. Past mistakes or financial obligations may require your attention. Put finishing touches on your existing projects but try not to start anything of great significance during the next few days.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You are more likely to enjoy prosperity if you find meaning and purpose. Resist going to extremes or the temptation to make sudden changes. It could be in your best interest to consider new information at your leisure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Wait for clarity before acting on new information. There could be invisible strings attached to a new venture. Work consistently to ensure that deadlines and requirements are met before the end of the workday.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Now is not the time to gamble anything important. Stand pat when it comes to investments and major purchases. A loved one might only see the practical issues and be oblivious to your need for more. A few words of encouragement can work wonders.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Relationship issues may move into sharper focus at this time. Ground yourself to prepare for unexpected changes or resistance to your desires. Even when you're accountable, you may still need to do damage control.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Stretch out to relieve tension stored in your body. Increasing job demands or work politics could challenge you to operate outside your comfort zone. Someone creative might give you ideas that you can put to good use.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Your business instincts are likely right on target, and you can deal with emergencies or upsets with confidence. Treat everyone well and steer clear of disagreements. Delay making major purchases or investments.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Learn from the past but concentrate on achieving something worthwhile in the present. Conflicts or surprises may tempt you to abandon plans. An exciting offer could have some hidden strings attached.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Take your time and stay on your personal pace for success. Your future awaits you at the perfect time. Trying to rush ahead won't get you there any faster. Don't let doubts or disagreements disrupt a key relationship.

PHOENIX

Ty Gibbs knew his teammate had to win the final regular-season race to qualify for the Xfinity Series championship.

JENNA FRYER

And yet Gibbs still spun Brandon Jones out of the lead on the final lap last week at Martinsville Speedway as Gibbs picked up his sixth win of the season.

Had he just settled for second place, Gibbs and Jones would have both advanced to Saturday's title race to give Joe Gibbs Racing a pair of Toyotas in the winner-take-all four-driver championship finale at Phoenix Raceway.

So why did he do it?

"It comes down to just caught in the moment, and you know, selfish actions led to that," Gibbs said Thursday at the Phoenix Convention Center.

The 20-year-old Gibbs — whose grandfather, Joe Gibbs, is a Hall of Famer in both NASCAR and the NFL and the owner of one of NASCAR's top organizations — has had a miserable week in preparation of racing for his first national championship. He created it himself by preventing Jones from winning at Martinsville, where the crowd chanted "Thank You, Grandpa" as Gibbs celebrated the win.

Then after the race, Gibbs in an interview compared himself to Jesus when asked about being NASCAR's newest villain. "I always go back to the same verse, that Jesus was hated first and among all the people."

Gibbs said Thursday he regrets the comment and said he didn't deliver the line the way he intended. But he regrets just about everything from last Saturday and has been on an apology tour at JGR, with Jones and with Toyota, which is furious one of its cars was knocked from the championship.

Because of Gibbs' action, the title race comes down to one Toyota driver and three Chevrolets from the JR Motorsports trio of Noah Gragson, Josh Berry and Justin Allgaier. Drivers from every series — including Gibbs' veteran teammates at JGR — have criticized Gibbs for Martinsville and his rivals are piling on headed into the finale.

"He doesn't care. He lives in fantasyland," Gragson said Thursday. "I have no clue honestly what goes through his mind. It's got to be badass to live in the kind of world where you just have no real consequences or anything."

His grandfather, however, insisted this week there would be consequences for his grandson.

Ty Gibbs said Thursday he doesn't know what they will be, but will accept any punishment headed his way.

He's expected to be named the replacement for Kyle Busch in the No. 18 Toyota in the Cup Series — one of the top rides in NASCAR — and Gibbs doesn't know if Martinsville has changed that.

"When tough things happen, and certainly nobody wanted that to happen, I said, 'Now there's consequences,' and so we're trying to walk through those with him," Joe Gibbs said. "Ty is walking through it, I'm walking through it, and we're still in that process. It was something that was heat of the battle. Everything is taking place. There was so much going on."

Complicating the situation is that Jones is leaving JGR after Saturday's race to drive for JR Motorsports next season and has no reason to help Gibbs win the championship. In fact, he could actively prevent him from the title by working with his future JRM teammates out of spite.

Additionally, Jones' father, J.R., is an executive chairman at Rheem, which is a major sponsor of Christopher Bell at JGR. Bell will race for the Cup title on Sunday, and Rheem has given no indication it will take punitive action against the organization for Jones' disappointing end with the team.

Ty Gibbs is a successful young driver: He won his NASCAR debut in 2021 and has 10 wins in 50 starts. He won the ARCA championship last season and has been doing double duty since July as the injury replacement in the Cup Series for concussed driver Kurt Busch. Gibbs will make his 16th Cup start the day after he races for the Xfinity championship.

But Gibbs has also been an aggressive driver — he even used the word "dirty" on Thursday to describe some of his on-track actions — and has been lambasted for multiple incidents even before Martinsville.

He got in a fight on pit road with Sam Mayer in which Gibbs, while wearing his helmet, began throwing punches at Mayer.

And NASCAR fined Gibbs $75,000 for a pit road incident in the Cup Series in which he nearly forced a competitor's car into personnel.

Coy Gibbs is the vice chairman at JGR and Ty is his son. He's defended him in the past, and while admitting the Martinsville race was "disappointing," Coy Gibbs still had his son's back.

"Look, he's my kid. I appreciate his aggression. But sometimes you got to pull back a little bit. This is a place where we need to pull back some," Coy Gibbs said. "Just talked to him and explained to him that doing that affects not just him, it affects our whole company, all our sponsors, all the people we deal with, Toyota, obviously affected Brandon.

"Those are things maybe you're not thinking of in that split second, but hopefully we can get with him and educate him on those things."

Gibbs has a long way to go to change the perception he's created for himself, particularly as he's poised to move into the tougher Cup Series next season.

He certainly seemed humbled Thursday, but knows he's got to prove himself on the track to change opinions and earn the respect of his rivals and JGR teammates.

"I have to face the fact that I made a mistake and I have to do the hardest of work to fix these issues," Gibbs said. "I put myself in this position, I didn't have to make it such a hard week. And it really hurts me because it's my family's team, and we're one big family. All their hurt and anger affects me. I've gone over the scenario millions of times.

"If I could redo it, I definitely would."

Deegan navigates social fame with NASCAR ambitions

Hailie Deegan lives some eight miles off the main road in a house stripped of its address — a deterrent to a persistent stalker who managed to locate her even after the purchase of her first home.

JENNA FRYER

He hid in the brush across the two-lane road from the house. The situation with the obsessed fan became public earlier this year when Deegan skipped an April race in Florida because of alleged death threats against her boyfriend.

So Deegan has learned how to protect herself, to document any unusual communications and to be aware of her surroundings. She's used NASCAR security as well as private security at races, but the 21-year-old Truck Series driver doesn't have the financial budget for a regular detail, so she's handling it on her own.

Her house has a security system, and she says she's equipped with guns that she knows how to use.

Chase Cabre, who like Deegan came through NASCAR's driver development program but didn't begin dating Deegan until those lonely early days of the COVID-19 lockdown, lives with her, and his brother is often around. Her uncle and his new wife recently moved from California into Deegan's house.

Even without the address posted on the property, Uncle Sonny made sure passersby wouldn't miss the house: he dug a full dirt track into her front yard that features an on-off, three consecutive bowls, a gap jump with an over-under, a tabletop, and plenty of twists and turns.

You want to find Deegan? She's probably on her Can-Am Maverick X3 tearing through the front yard and making content for her YouTube page that has half a million followers.

She boasts 1.2 million followers on Instagram and with Cabre as her social media manager, the couple typically devotes two days a week to creating content for NASCAR's only female driver racing full-time at the national level.

Deegan is savvy and understands impressions, brand value and navigating the aggressive motorsports financial landscape in which a driver must be both talented on the track and usually also able to secure funding for a race team.

"Nowadays is so hard in racing, no matter how good you are, what you do, there's always going to be someone with more money at their fingertips, waiting to buy a better seat," Deegan told The Associated Press on a day spent with her at her North Carolina home.

"And dammit, no matter how hard you work, it sometimes doesn't make any difference because there's somebody who has more money."

So there she was headed into the final Truck Series race of the year Friday night at Phoenix Raceway without plans for 2023 announced. Deegan is a Ford development driver and has spent the last two seasons at NASCAR's third-tier national series racing trucks for David Gilliland.

Gilliland is moving his program to Toyota next season, and even though Deegan started her career with Toyota, there's no spot for her in the move.

WHAT'S NEXT?

Deegan's future isn't actually in doubt, at least not according to Ford.

She has a sponsorship package from Monster Energy, which has also sponsored her father, Brian, the most decorated freestyle motocross rider and X-Games superstar. But it's not enough money, so Deegan acquires personal deals and uses social media to attract more sponsors.

Her strategy is deliberate and creates the statistical data she can present to potential backers as proof of her value.

Deegan's social media presence can be a stronger sales point than her on-track results: Deegan in two seasons in the Truck Series has three top-10 finishes in 44 starts and has yet to lead a lap.

She's failed to finish seven times because of crashes, and fault rarely matters.

"I know mistakes are made, especially at the Truck Series level, but I get really, really mad about it," Deegan told The AP. "Because I know how hard we worked for that money. And when I am having a good day and running well and get wrecked, I know what that means in the sponsors' eyes."

Knowing Deegan needs a 2023 ride, Ford helped her last month make her first career Xfinity Series start.

She finished 13th at Las Vegas Motor Speedway.

"She did exactly what she needed to do. She had a good car, a good team around her and she had the right approach and the right preparation," said Mark Rushbrook, global director of Ford Performance Motorsports. "She drove a really good, smart, solid race, and that's exactly what we wanted to see out of her."

Rushbrook wouldn't comment on 2023 for Deegan beyond saying she "will definitely be in a Ford racing something next year."

Deegan would love for it to be an Xfinity Series ride after two frustrating seasons in Trucks.

After her Las Vegas debut, Deegan looked directly into a live television camera and made her pitch: "If anyone is out there who wants to pay the bills, I am more than happy to race more Xfinity races."

A ROLE MODEL

The line snaked across the ballroom floor of the Speedway Club at Charlotte Motor Speedway as women of all ages lined up to meet Deegan, who made an appearance at last month's Women in Motorsports convention.

Waiting to speak to Deegan was 15-year-old Katie Hettinger, a Michigan racer who had just been announced as a participant in the Drive for Diversity combine. Deegan had gone through the same process and Hettinger hoped to ask for advice.

Hettinger never got the chance. As soon as Hettinger told Deegan she was going to the combine, Deegan launched into the nitty-gritty. She told the younger racer what to expect and stressed, multiple times, "just make sure you stand out. Make sure they know who you are before it is over."

Deegan is approachable, and like Danica Patrick, she's also attractive. She doesn't avoid the path Patrick took early on of leveraging her looks to fund her racing, and perhaps that's how Deegan landed her scariest stalker to date.

Deegan had received her share of odd attention and aggressive fandom over the years, but nothing like a nearly yearlong case in which a man claimed he'd been sent to save Deegan from an abusive Cabre.

Deegan says the man has been "catfished" into believing he has a relationship with her, and when his social media interactions escalated this year into him showing up at the team shop, the California girl had to learn how to play detective and North Carolina's laws.

Deegan says she has a restraining order in place. The experience has not made her scale back her visibility.

She takes pride when racers like Hettinger approach her and hopes her career ascends to the point where she can inspire many more.

"I love seeing other little girls come into racing, and older men come up to me and say 'I got my daughter into racing because of you, because I saw that you were able to do it and show there is a hope and a future,' " Deegan said. "Little girls come up to me when I am at the dirt track, telling me how they watch my YouTube videos so they can see how I drive, and how I act.

"I'm not perfect, but at least they are watching."

College hoops to play on Election Day after rule change

BY DOUG FEINBERG
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

The NCAA is allowing teams to play and practice on Election Day after making it a mandatory off day the past two years to allow athletes to participate in civic engagement.

The move came on the recommendation of the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee, which called for allowing athletes who are in season to have activities on Election Day if they are provided another day off in the 15 days before or after that date for civic engagement opportunities.

"We had these discussions to give athletes the most flexibility as possible," said Wake Forest basketball player Olivia Summiel, who is on the SAAC. "Civic engagement isn't just going to vote. It's getting involved in your community. Definitely laying out different ways of what can we do to fulfill this. It leaves teams flexibility to fill that void."

The amended rule was passed in June. Many athletes use absentee ballots.

There are 11 men's basketball games next Tuesday, including No. 8 UCLA hosting Sacramento State. There are also 10 women's games, including a marquee matchup of No. 5 Tennessee visiting No. 14 Ohio State.

"Much of it had to do with availability here and what worked for both us and Tennessee," Ohio State coach Kevin McGuff said. "Ours is a later game (8:30 p.m. tip) so it gives people plenty of time to do their civic duty and vote."

The first day for teams to officially start playing games is Monday. No. 11 Indiana is also playing on Tuesday because the men's team is playing on Monday and the school doesn't do doubleheaders with the two teams. The Hoosiers used Oct. 27 as their civic engagement day.

Wake Forest is playing on Monday. Summiel said her team had a variety of civic engagement activities planned over the next week.

"We are discussing participating in a march to the polls event," Summiel said. "The team will march from our athletic facilities to the church across the street where they hold registration to vote. We want to take it on as a team and gather people within campus on our way there to get people registered there."

quarter allowing the Warriors to climb back into the game. Alexus Bryant's shot with 3:15 left in the first half closed the gap to 14-10 for CAI and moments later, Leah Stevens answered an Ava Turner 3-pointer with a trey of her own to keep the margin to four.

But Allison Knoebel scored on a fast break and Barron hit two free throws with five seconds left to put the Hilltoppers ahead 22-13 at the break. Shawe then opened the third quarter with four-straight points to push the margin into double-figures and was never threatened again. The Hilltoppers led 38-22 after the third periods and the 18-point final margin was their biggest of the game.

Barron scored 14 points and had six rebounds in her first high school game while Knoebel, just a sophomore, also had 14 points. Turner, another sophomore, scored 10 points and had eight rebounds while freshman point guard Hunter Mote had four points and six assists while turning the ball over just once.

"I've told them from the jump in conditioning about three months ago that they're gonna play a lot of minutes and there's a lot of expectations but I'm not gonna put them in any situations that I don't think they can perform," Kring said of his youngsters. "But I also want to shout out (junior) Yolett Perez because although you probably don't see it a whole lot in the boxscore, she gave us a lot. We've talked about knowing your role, and just doing our job and playing our brand of basketball and I mean, that's what we did tonight."

Stevens scored 13 points to lead Christian Academy while Bryant had eight points. Neither team shot more more 40%, with Shawe hitting 18-of-47 (38%) attempts and CAI 12-of-37 (32%).

Shawe now competes in the very tough Lady Panther Shootout at Jennings County today where the Hilltoppers will face Charlestown in the first game at noon then take on either Jennings County or North Harrison in the second game.

Shawe will host Class A No. 4 Jac-Cen-Del on Tuesday in its Ohio River Valley Conference opener.

REBELS BEAT HENRYVILLE

Southwestern girls basketball opened the 2022-23 season with a 49-34 win at Henryville on Thursday.

The Rebels, now 1-0, host Brown County on Saturday. Due to ongoing bleacher installation at the high school's King Gymnasium, the game will be played at Southwestern Elementary School.

ASTROS

"It just sucks because of the moment and obviously all the questions and weight," Verlander said. "But you have to rely on the hundreds of starts and the thousands of pitches I've thrown before and just kind of say, 'OK, I've given up leadoff home runs before. Let me bear down.' "

Philadelphia loaded the bases in the second on Jean Segura's single and a pair of walks. After a visit from pitching coach Bill Murphy, Verlander wiggled out of trouble by striking out Hoskins on a slider.

"It was kind of a tricky thing because my first start, my slider and curveball was what I got hurt on most," Verlander said. "Once we started leaning on them a little bit, it was almost like testing the water, sticking your foot in the pool and seeing how cold it is."

Verlander threw exclusively fastballs in 17 pitches to Bryce Harper, who doubled with two outs in the fifth. Baker left in Verlander to face Nick Castellanos.

"He's been one of the best of getting out of trouble and, to me, that was his game," Baker said. "Who can you bring in that's better than the guy that's out there?"

Castellanos, whose single off a slider started Verlander's Game 1 downfall, followed with an epic 10-pitch at-bat. After trying two fastballs, two curveballs and his only changeup of the night, Verlander threw his fifth slider of the plate appearance and retired Castellanos on a flyout to short left, pumping a fist twice in excitement.

"It's a game of centimeters," Castellanos said. "If I'm on top of that ball a little bit more, we're in a different situation."

Peña had three hits: an RBI single through a drawn-in infield in the first after Jose Altuve's leadoff double, a homer in the fourth on a hanging curveball (his fourth longball of the posteason) for a 2-1 lead and an eighth-inning single that set up Yordan Alvarez's run-scoring groundout.
